

Winnie's reign of fear in Soweto

Winnie Mandela, wife of the leader of South Africa's anti-apartheid movement Nelson Mandela, has tarnished the image of the anti-apartheid movement. After Nelson was sentenced to life in prison in 1964, Winnie was exiled from the country. "South Africa's first lady" defied the government and returned to Soweto in 1985.

Shortly after returning, Winnie founded the Mandela United Football Club. The football players' interests soon turned from sportsman-like competition to acts of violence and terror. Winnie's "children" enjoy an untouchable reign of fear in the streets of Soweto. In 1986, the players executed some police collaborators. Winnie was directly involved in these executions, and she has been implicated in the murder of a 14 year old boy and a doctor. The doctor was the last person to see the boy and was going to testify in court.

Winnie also had a fifteen-room mansion built, which did not increase her popularity among South Africa's poverty-stricken black population.

"Free Nelson and hang Winnie!" reads some informative graffiti on a wall in Johannesburg.

Efforts mounting for prisoner exchange

Speculation is mounting in Lebanon that Arabs imprisoned in Israel may be freed shortly in return for captured Israeli soldiers as part of a complex deal to win the release of Western hostages in Lebanon.

But in Israel, military and defense sources said last week they had no information about the proposed swap.

Reports of increased diplomatic efforts to free the 17 Westerners are now being linked to the fate of some 300 Arabs, and Sheikh Abdel-Karim Obeid, who was seized by Israel in Lebanon last July, and three Israelis captured by terrorists in South Lebanon.

Talks about the exchange of prisoners began last August. Israel offered to swap about 300 Shi'ites and Obeid, for the Western hostages and three Israeli soldiers.

The release of Arab prisoners has been a key demand by radical groups holding the 17 Western hostages in Lebanon. But Hizbullah, which has held the three soldiers since 1985, said then that such an exchange was impossible.

A senior leader of the Iranian-backed Hizbullah told Reuters that an end to the hostage drama was in sight but that this depended on the hostage-takers getting something in return.

The conservative 'al-Liwa' newspaper, based in Moslem West Beirut, put a date on a possible exchange of Palestinian and Lebanese Shi'ite Moslems in return for the Israeli prisoners.

Quoting Palestinian sources in Amman, the newspaper said the exchange of prisoners could take place at the beginning of the

Update on the hostage crisis

Currently, eight American hostages are being held somewhere in the Middle East, most likely in Lebanon. The pro-Iranian terrorists are thought to be holding the hostages in Bekaa, an Eastern valley of Lebanon where most of Beirut's Muslim Shiite suburbs are located. Terry Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press in 1985, has been held the longest (over six years currently). Other hostages include Joseph Cicippio (controller of the American University of Beirut), Thomas Sutherland (Dean of Agriculture at the University), Alan Steen (Journalism professor), Jesse Turner (Mathematics professor), Frank Reed (Director of the Lebanon International School), Mr. Pohil, and Edward Tracy (a writer). According to the New York Times, at least one other person is thought to be held in Lebanon at present as well. Mr. Terry Waite, of England, has been missing for several years after attempting to negotiate the release of the prisoners. In addition, nine others are thought to be captive.

There is hope that all of the hostages may soon be released. For the past few weeks, the hopes of the families with hostages have been boosted with the cooperation of foreign leaders and then deflated again when no immediate action has been taken.

Former President Jimmy Carter, while on unofficial visit to Damascus on March 16, said that President Hafez al-Assad of Syria and Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa promised their help in freeing the hostages. Carter said, "I think now there is a growing desire on the part of the Iranian government and the United States government to work out the problems...." Another leader, Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjahi of Iran, has declared his hopes that the hostage issue can be settled soon, most likely so that Iran would be able to get on with rebuilding its war-damaged economy. While apparently unable to control the terrorists completely, foreign leaders have opted their support in plans for the hostages to be released.

At home, President Bush says he plans "to keep open lines of communications with all parties, including Iran, who have influence over hostage takers." However, he also repeatedly said there are no ongoing negotiations to win freedom for the hostages.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said because of President Reagan's actions in the Iran-contra experience, he does not think anyone will do anything irrational because of contact with the hostage families. The families are trying to see that everything possible is done to free their relatives soon.

In the past, during the Carter administration, seventeen other Western hostages were held. Thomas Friedman, chief diplomatic correspondent for the New York Times, said that so far hostages have only been released by the "market solution" (exchange of money or goods for hostages) and the "military solution" such as the Israeli raid on Entebbe Airport in Uganda during the French crisis in 1976. Friedman thinks the United States is trying yet another option today, the "constitutional solution." This simply means that the United States sits back and says "I'm sorry, we just don't negotiate with kidnappers." Apparently thus far, this approach has not worked very well with the terrorists. Hopefully, the hostages will be able to come home some day soon.

A new concern for the environment

BYU students help show that concern

By CAROL YAGER
Universe Staff Writer

Despite occasional rainshowers, approximately 3,500 BYU students improved the Utah Valley community Saturday morning as a part of BYU's Y-Day.

Hundreds of students went to numerous projects around the Utah Valley community in an effort to serve and improve the environment.

A few of the main projects included tree planting and erosion control in American Fork, Hobbie Creek and Maple Canyons.

Steve Winslow of the Pleasant Grove Ranger District, said the rangers were extremely pleased with the turnout and hard work.

Winslow estimates that a year's worth of trash was picked up in many of the canyons, including Rock and Dry Canyons. Students planted 5,000-6,000 trees, almost half the amount the district plants each year.

"The need to plant trees comes from a request of the federal government and President Bush," Winslow said.

"Trees improve air quality, and with the threat of the greenhouse effect, trees are important because of their role in creating better air I-15.

Eco Response is also organizing tree planting next week, involving all BYU students who are interested. They plan on planting 100,000 trees in the month of April in Hobbie Creek Canyon and along I-15.

Committee clears bill; House to vote next

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A far-reaching clean air bill goes to the House floor after clearing a committee by a lopsided 42-1 vote, moving Congress a step closer to enacting tougher air pollution controls.

The Energy and Commerce Committee approved the complex and costly clean air package late Thursday, after resolving the thorny issue of helping Midwest utilities cope with tougher acid rain controls.

The acid rain compromise, approved 39-4, aims to help Midwest states pay for cleaning up pollution caused from utility plants by providing a "pollution allowance" system and a one-year extension for initial compliance in some cases.

New clean air bill not so new

By TRENTON K. RICKS
Senior Reporter

Last week the U.S. Senate passed a clean air bill that if passed by the House and signed by the president — as is expected — will take large strides in reigning in the nation's air pollution. The bill calls for measures in the automobile and fuel industries that will cost an estimated $21 billion per year.

The cost is high, but the consensus in both the government and in private communities in this country is the cost of inaction is much higher.

This attitude toward clean air has become commonplace during the last couple of years. The environmental issue that candidates from both parties have argued over who would be the strongest "environmental president," and Pres. Bush has taken the first steps to create a cabinet post for the secretary of the environment.

This political frenzy is no surprise to some. Clean air and other environmental issues have been building momentum since the last half of the 1980s. What might be surprising is that the clean air movement is older than most. BYU students, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said he began leading a movement in 1963 that had no real followers.

"In 1963, I would say, there were two or three in the Senate and maybe a half a dozen in the House who you could really identify as genuine environmentalists," he said.

Even with the sparse support, in 1963, the federal government enacted the first Clean Air Act, authorizing $95 million for state, local and interstate agencies to control air pollution.

Historian Samuel P. Hays claims that it was during this time that Americans began taking an interest in improving the environment. He writes in his book "Beauty, Health and Permanence" that "the most widespread source of emerging environmental interest was the search for a better life associated with home, community and leisure."

This search for a better environment was compounded with fear in 1962 when Rachel Carson published her book, "Silent Spring," telling of the insidious effects of pesticides. It wasn't long before the government would begin taking action.

But action in the beginning was

Ryan White loses 5 1/2-year AIDS battle

INDIANAPOLIS — Ryan White, who won a long court battle to attend public school and overcame prejudice against himself and other AIDS victims, lost his 5 1/2-year struggle with the deadly disease on Sunday. He was 18.

White died shortly after 7 a.m. at Riley Hospital for Children, where he had been hospitalized since March 29 with an AIDS-related respiratory infection. He had been heavily sedated and on a ventilator.

White's mother, Jeanne, and sister, Andrea, 16, had kept a bedside vigil, joined at times by celebrities, such as singer Elton John and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Dr. Martin B. Kleiman, White's physician throughout his illness, said death followed a slow deterioration that had begun Saturday.

"At the end, his family and a few of the others who loved him were close at his side," Kleiman said. "He never regained consciousness, and I am confident that he suffered no pain at the end."

White was 13 when he was diagnosed with AIDS in December 1984. He had contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome through a blood-clotting agent used to treat his hemophilia. It is estimated that more than half of the nation's 20,000 hemophiliacs were infected with the AIDS virus before better blood donation screening procedures were adopted, and 1,200 have developed AIDS.

Besides his mother and sister, White is survived by his father Wayne.

Danish ferry fire claims about 150 lives

LYSEKIL, Sweden — Exhausted firefighters braved metal-melting heat and poisonous smoke from a two-day-old fire Sunday to begin removing bodies of about 150 victims from the Scandinavian Star ferry.

Firemen struggled to reach cabins where victims burned to death or suffocated in the suspicious blaze.

It began before dawn Saturday while the ship was in the North Sea carrying about 500 tourists and crewmembers on an overnight trip from Norway to Denmark.

The heat was so intense Sunday that it melted aluminum aboard the bridge of the Danish-owned ship.

Firefighters in masks and breathing equipment fought through one corridor "until their gear started to burn," said fire consultant Olle Wennstrom. One firefighter was slightly injured, he said.

Firemen were seen leaving the ship in tears during the night. Each firefighting team underwent psychological care after being relieved, officials said.

Poindexter, North may face grand jury

WASHINGTON — John Poindexter faces a possible grand jury appearance after his June sentencing on Iran-Contra convictions, sources say, as prosecutors chase elusive information vital to writing a final report on the Reagan era scandal.

New testimony from both Poindexter and former National Security Council staff deputy Oliver North could be compelled under a grant of immunity from prosecution, the sources said. They said the investigation is far from over.

While such grand jury appearances might provide missing links to the coverup and help prosecutors close the books on the more than 3 1/2-year-old scandal, new indictments would be unlikely, they added.

That was the consensus drawn from a series of interviews with sources in and out of government in the wake of Poindexter's conviction Saturday on conspiracy, obstruction and lying to Congress.

These sources, who discussed the case with The Associated Press on condition of anonymity, said Poindexter's weekend convictions are significant because they provide a focus for the next, and possibly final, phase of the Iran-Contra prosecutors' criminal probe.

Utah chem weapons disposal site delayed

TOOELE ARMY DEPOT — Budget reductions and lessons learned on an existing chemical weapons disposal facility in the Pacific will delay start of the first such plant in the continental United States, the Army says.

Operations at a plant here now are planned to begin in October 1993, about eight months later than originally planned, an Army official said.

The $138 million Tooele facility was to have been operational in February 1993.

Susan Broadbent, public affairs spokeswoman, said the delay is due to "lessons learned and budget reductions."

Through experience with the Johnston Atoll facility in the Pacific Ocean, scheduled to begin operations this summer, the Army has learned that it takes 18 months rather than 12 months to test equipment, train operators and ensure the plant is safe, she said.

The Army's revised schedule also extends completion of disposal operations in Utah from April 1997 to December 1998.

Hungary conservative party victorious

Hungary — Voters choosing Hungary's first freely elected government in 43 years gave an overwhelming victory Sunday to Hungary's main conservative party.

"I am completely certain that we won the elections," Democratic Forum President Jozsef Antall told jubilant supporters crowding party headquarters six hours after polls closed.

"But it is not we, but the Hungarian people who have won these elections," he said.

Final results for the 261 parliamentary seats at stake in runoff elections Sunday were not expected before Tuesday. But state television showed the conservative Hungarian Democratic Forum winning 41.8 percent of the vote, or 116 seats, with more than 90 percent of the votes counted.

Their closest rivals, the liberal Alliance of Free Democrats, won 21 percent of the vote, or 58 seats.

The agrarian-based Smallholders party won 29 districts with 11.5 percent of the vote, while reform Communists grouped in the Socialist Party had won 18 with 8 percent. Eight seats were still not determined.

Y-day activities

By CAROL YAGER
Universe Staff Writer

Saturday's Y-Day activities involved more than just planting trees and picking up trash. Numerous students worked throughout the community cleaning school yards, visiting nursing homes, and visiting with grandparents in BYUSA's Adopt-A-Grandparent program.

More than eight nursing homes were visited and approximately five school yards were cleaned. Other projects included litter pick-up in numerous canyons and throughout Utah Valley, tree planting, erosion control, yard work at the American Fork Training School, cemetery cleanup and park cleanup.

"It was great because people who didn't even know each other all pitched in and got a lot of work done," said Jennifer Johnson, a volunteer.

Outlook is promising for Y-day tree survival

ERIN NESMITH
Universe Staff Writer

All the trees planted on Y-Day have a 60 percent to 80 percent chance of surviving to maturity, said a forest manager. Steve Winslow, assistant ranger at Pleasant Grove, said the average survival rate across the Wasatch Front is somewhere from 30 percent to 60 percent. Some areas may be as high as 80 percent to 90 percent. It depends a lot on the climate after they're planted," said Winslow. The work of replanting an area is not done once the seedlings are in the ground. The near-drought situations in the past few years have lowered the survival rate. This year, managers may go back to water the new trees.

Volunteers are a great help in getting the work done, said Winslow. Scout troops, community groups, and student organizations really make a difference.

"I can't express how much we appreciate the help of the students in getting this job done," said Kent Cornaby, forestry technician at the Spanish Fork ranger district.

More than 10,000 trees will be planted this year in a continual effort to maintain Utah's forests. The trees planted have usually been grown for less than a year, and measure 12 to 18 inches from the top to the root, said Winslow. If the trees survive, after 15 years, they can be 10 feet tall.

Trees are up against a lot more than drought in their fight to maturity. Insects, fire, and the timber industry can all keep a tree from surviving.

Insects, not fire or milling, is the largest cause of loss in timber, said Brent Spencer, a forester in the Heber district. The mountain pine beetle and the spruce beetle do the most damage to Utah's forests.

Spraying for the insects is difficult, if not impossible to do.

"There is nationwide concern over the spraying of aerial application of pesticides," said Spencer.

The pesticides may kill beneficial insects as well, and ultimately harm the wildlife. We never seem to get very far ahead, said Spencer.

BYU student Julie Davis plants one of 10,000 trees Saturday, as part of Y-Day. This young tree at the Hobbie Creek area will have to fight nature's elements for survival. It's toughest fight will be against insects.

Earth Day celebration to get back to nature

By AMY K. STEWART
Senior Reporter

Cleaner air, more trees and better recycling is the goal of environmentalists who have organized Provo's first Earth Day celebration for April 21.

The celebration is also based on the 20th anniversary of the original 1970 Earth Day in Washington D.C. The Provo celebration will center around an environmental march, which will lead to Kiwanis park for a festival.

Other aspects of Earth Day include tree plantings, a 5-K run/walk and a speech and poster contest.

Jessica McCann, publicity director of Earth Day in Provo, said, "Something like this has never happened in Provo before. People here very seldom unite for a cause other than when dealing with religion."

The purpose of Earth Day is to educate people about their environment and get people to be more aware and involved, said Britt Thompson, festival committee chairperson.

The idea of having an Earth Day march in Provo was conceived by Shaun Humphries, chairperson of the environmental march. "I was inspired by what has happened in Beijing, Romania, and Berlin," Humphries said. "I felt that in this town a lot of people are concerned about the environment, but no one does anything about it — they just talk about it."

The march will begin at the field by the Harmon Building on BYU campus at 9 a.m., April 21. It will go down 900 East to Kiwanis park. Participants are encouraged to carry signs or banners. Many people will be dressing as smoke stacks or an endangered species, Humphries said.

Committee chairpersons suggested slogans for banners to be "Clean Our Air," "Plant a Tree for Mother Earth," or "Turn Down the Heat."

Any group can be involved in the march. There will be students from Snow College and Southern Utah State University. Also, BYU clubs, business groups, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will take part. McCann said, "It's not a bunch of 'radicals' — even grandmas and grandpas are getting involved."

Humphries said, "When we told the national headquarters everything that was going on in a little conservative town in Utah, they were surprised and thrilled. We may get national television coverage," Humphries said.

The festival at Kiwanis park will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It will include food and information booths, bands, speeches, and a petting zoo for children. "It's going to be fun and exciting," McCann said.

A concern the environmentalists want people to become aware of through Earth Day is the quality of air in Provo. "I'm from New York City and I can't believe how much dirtier the air is here in Provo compared to New York," Humphries said.

Another goal the environmentalists have in conjunction with Earth Day is to plant 100,000 trees during April and May. Trees will be planted on 'Y' Mountain, up Hobbie Creek Canyon, and along highways. Jeff Humphries said, "We are running out of trees. Trees are the lungs of the planet, and it takes so long to plant them and let them grow."

AIR

This trend continued for the next few years as Congress drafted laws that would not only control air pollution, but also water pollution, ocean dumping, noise pollution and pesticides.

These years were the last great ones for environmentalists until the late 1980s. For more than a decade, the environmental issues got lost in the shuffle behind the energy crunch, racial unrest, unemployment and the domination of private industry and enterprise in the early 80s.

It has been only recently that interest in and concern for the environment has regained widespread attention. Air quality is just one of a number of concerns that include recycling, deforestation and global warming.

The last time either house of Congress changed federal clean air laws was 1977. The tough new requirements are one set of changes among many that reflect the nation's growing concern for the environment.

Quarterback Ty Detmer looked strong as he was 9 for 15 with 159 yards passing and two touchdowns.

Senior Andy Boyce was Detmer's favorite target; Boyce caught six passes for 87 yards. "I think the offense looks good," said Boyce. "The quarterbacks did well. I'm sure the coaches were pleased with the effort. I think we'll have a great season this year."

Although no quarterback controversy exists this year, backup quarterback Brent Smith is optimistic about his role as the No. 2 quarterback.

"Number two is a good position to be in," Smith said. "I've got to be ready to go anytime." Smith threw 15 for 26 with 200 yards passing.

With time running out in the half, Keith Lever put the white team ahead to stay with a 42-yard field goal.

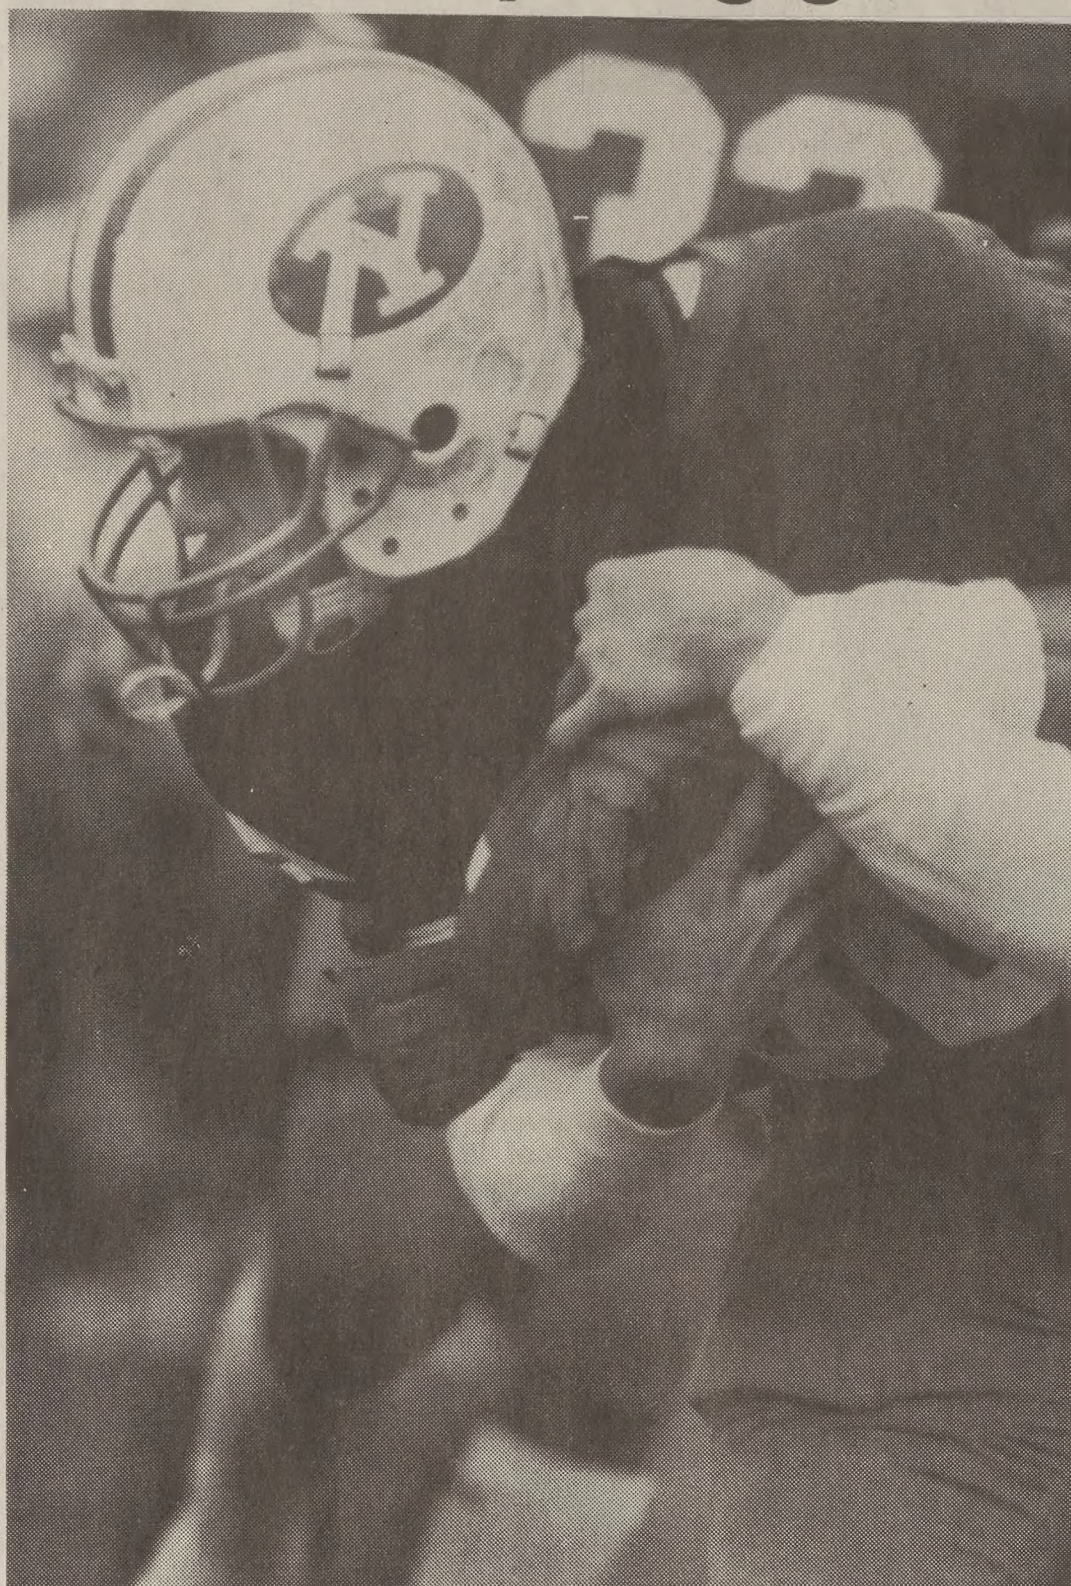

The defense for both teams was especially stingy. The white squad had a formidable goal-line stand in the third quarter. The defenses also forced a total of four fumbles.

Quarterback Brent Smith said, "The defense looks tough; I thought we'd be able to score more."

The white team went ahead 17-7 in the third quarter when Detmer threw a two-yard pass to Stacey Corley. Corley looks forward to his last year at BYU. "I hope to try to fill the role that has been handed to me," Corley said. "I have a lot of confidence in our players. The defense looks good...after getting hit by them all year."

The blue team threatened to score late in the game, but was stopped on the fourth down.

After the game, the football players remained on the field to sign autographs.

Detmer makes All-Bowl Team

Ty Detmer was selected as quarterback of the All-Bowl Team. Detmer was also given this year's offensive "Clutch" Award for his performance in the Holiday Bowl against Penn State.

Detmer is the seventh BYU player to be selected to an All-Bowl Team. Previous BYU All-Bowl selections were: Clay Brown, Jim McMahon and Glen Titensor, 1980 Holiday Bowl; Gordon Hudson, 1981 Holiday Bowl; Trevor Matich and Robbie Bosco, 1984 Holiday Bowl; and Jason Chafetz, 1988 Freedom Bowl.

Detmer is also the third Cougar to receive the "Clutch" Award. Jim McMahon was given the "Clutch" Award for his play against SMU in the 1980 Holiday Bowl.

Robbie Bosco received the award in 1984 for his courageous effort in leading BYU to a national championship.

Track teams lose to Weber State

By ANDY BOYCE

Both the BYU men's and women's track teams were edged by host Weber State at the Standard Examiner Track and Field Meet Friday and Saturday in Ogden.

The men tracksters scored 82 points while Weber State had 85 points. The lady Cougars scored 96 points while the lady Wildcats had 98 points.

BYU coach Willard Hirschi said, "We did pretty well considering we didn't bring our whole team to compete. We really missed our sprinters though."

BYU's Loxley Walters captured the triple jump while Per Karlsson won the discus. Jack Mohr won the shot put with a throw of 54-4 1/4 inches. Hirschi said, "Jack is really coming into his own."

Coach Craig Poole said, "Elizabeth had a great meet. She came through when she needed to."

Jody Hendricks won the 100-meters with a time of 14.82 seconds while Cathy James won the discus with a throw of 167-5.

Leanne Martin won the 3,000-meters at 10:14.90 and Kartsi Leppaluoto won the shot put.

Poole said, "It was disappointing but we had some good performances and we are going to get better."

Spikers lose on the road

By MICHAEL J. WARD
Universe Sports Writer

Two more losses to Long Beach State and Pepperdine University this weekend dropped the BYU men's volleyball team to 1-12 in the conference and 5-19 overall.

Long Beach beat the Cougars 13-5, 15-10, 15-6, 15-3, before turning them over to Pepperdine, which won 13-15, 15-11, 15-6, 15-13.

Team spokesman Jeff Ruffolo said, "BYU started out on a peak and then went downhill from there; right into the toilet."

In the first game, the score was tied 8-8 until Skule Vagen and Shawn Patchell combined to put BYU up 11-8. BYU had two net errors and a reception error to tie the game at 12-12. Long Beach went up 13-12 on a service ace but BYU came back. Vagen had a block for the win.

In game two, a service ace from Scott Waddell and more blocks from Patchell and Vagen gave BYU an 8-3 lead. "That's when trouble started for us," said Ruffolo. Long Beach outscored the Cougars 12-2, to win the game at 15-10.

In game three, the 49ers went up 4-4. At 11-5, BYU had more net errors and a lift by the setter to give Long Beach the game at 15-6.

The 49ers took a 6-0 lead in the fourth game. BYU scored three points on 49er errors but it was all Long Beach from there.

In the first game against Pepperdine, the Waves started out with several blocks on Gunnar Lindstoel to take a 6-2 lead. Pepperdine errors brought it to 7-5. Pepperdine went up 10-6 before BYU came alive. Patchell and Ross Burningham blocks tied the game at 11-11. Pepperdine took a 13-11 lead but the Cougars came back. Kills by Vagen and Waddell gave the game to BYU.

The Waves went up 14-7 in the second game, then BYU served several aces to make it 14-11, but Pepperdine's Dijon Doupner finished the game with a kill.

Lifts, nets and hitting errors let the Waves run away with a 15-6 win.

In game four BYU went up 9-5, and two Vagen blocks and an ace by Rod Cortez made it 13-8. "Then the Cougars self-destructed," said Ruffolo. Pepperdine finished the game at 15-13.

McGown said, "The only way you can win is to play under pressure, and learn how to react to that pressure. When the match got tough, we choked."

Rain brings early end to BYU winning streak

By ALEXA A. DAVIS
Universe Sports Writer

Dark skies and bad weather left game four of the BYU baseball team's Saturday night battle against fourteenth ranked University of Hawaii in a tie when the game was called with a score of 10-10.

Hawaii appeared ready to win the fourth game of the series in Saturday's nightcap as they scored four runs in the first inning. Senior Randy Wilstead then stepped up for BYU and hit his 11th homerun of the season making the score 4-1 in the first inning. However, Hawaii came back with four more runs in the second inning to take an 8-1 lead.

BYU battled back in the third inning when Wilstead hit his second homerun of the game and 12th of the season. Coach Gary Pullins said that he felt Wilstead had a "clinic" weekend getting six hits out of seven at bats in Saturday's games. "He was really our leader offensively," he said.

Freshman Darren Milne also hit a homerun in the third inning. Milne hit the homer on his first at bat as a varsity player. "Darren Milne came in and just did a great job," said Wilstead.

Going into the seventh inning, BYU led Hawaii 10-9. Hawaii tied the score and BYU was unable to break the tie before the game was called.

Wilstead said he feels that BYU would have won the game had they been allowed to continue. "I believe the momentum was going our way."

The Cougars got off to a good start in game three on Saturday when they took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Wilstead hit a double to bring in Jeff Howes. A wild pitch moved Wilstead to third base followed by Blaine Milne being walked. BYU was then able to execute a double steal to bring in another run.

The Cougars never gave up the lead and went on to win game three 8-4.

In game two the Cougars battled in a close game to win 10-9.

Senior pitcher Mike Switzer

started on the mound for the Cougars in game one. Switzer got the win and said he felt this was one of his better games of the season. The Cougars went on to win the game 9-3.

Pullins said the victories of the weekend were due to, "good performances from a lot of people." He said there were good starting performances from Switzer, Mike Nielson, and Kendall Bennett on the mound.

"Defensively we also played really well and turned some double plays," he said.

"We had a good weekend. We need to keep playing like that and we'll be in contention for the WAC championship," said Switzer.

Wherever you go this summer, take an Independent Study course and earn university credit.

The benefit of BYU Independent Study is this: It conforms to your own pace and to your own schedule. And you can do it anywhere.

That flexibility gives you the opportunity to combine your education with your surroundings.

For instance, if you are going to be near a cultural center like New York or Los Angeles, take a humanities, English, art history, or theatre and film course.

If you are going to be around historic areas like Boston, Philadelphia, or

Washington D.C., bring along a history or political science course.

If you are working in a business environment, there are a number of courses like marketing, information management, accounting, economics and others that will make your experience more meaningful to you and your employer.

Regardless of your interest and need, taking an Independent Study course in a field environment can give you the opportunity to learn in the midst of unlimited resources and applications.

There are many courses to choose from. All of them will give you full university credit and can put you closer to graduation.

Pick up a FREE Independent Study catalog from the information desk at the Wilkinson Center, the ASB, your advisement center, or from our office at 206 Harman Building. Or, call 378-2868.

Take a course with you this summer wherever you go.

Now Hiring

NeXT is interviewing for the position of Campus Consultant. The student filling this role must be self-motivated, personable, an adept programmer ('C' is a plus), and have a strong knowledge of the UNIX™ operating system. We are especially interested in students with at least 1 full year of school remaining. Full-time summer employment is available.

Responsibilities include, but are not limited to: Product Demonstrations, Application Prototyping, Networking/Connectivity Solutions, and User Training and Support.

To be considered for this position, send a resume with work experience to: NeXT Jobs, NeXT Inc., 4600 S. Ulster St., Suite 700, Denver, CO 80237. You may also FAX a resume to (303) 694-0613 or email to jobs@next.com

Responses must be received by April 15, 1990.

Why Sierra-West?

1. We are an American Gem Society Store, and the only accredited gem lab in Utah County.
2. We buy from the largest cutters in the world.
3. We will meet any verifiable price, and we have the ability to guarantee that price.
4. We have more than 500 styles to choose from.
5. We can also custom design.
6. The only complete lifetime insurance plan against loss, theft or damage.
7. Lifetime warranty against defect, and the diamond may be checked at one of 800 AGS locations throughout the United States and Canada.
8. 16 years of buying knowledge and experience.
9. Over 22 services, including tux rental, flowers, photograph package, dinner, and invitations.
10. Because wholesalers are here today and gone tomorrow.

Check at Sierra West Diamonds for details regarding the above services and discounts.

BYUSA puts 26 on council

Universe Services

BYUSA has announced its 1990-91 president's council. After two weeks of interviewing, the presidency decided on the 26 students who will fill president's council positions.

Brett Blake, 1990-91 BYUSA president, said he was very pleased with those individuals they have chosen. "We feel we have put together a team which represents many students' ideas and concerns and this will help us be more responsive."

Executive directors are Joshua S.E.D., Christy Smith, Bruce Madsen, Charles Nahale, Patty Hawkins, Mike Rodenberg, Tristan Yeaman, Trent Poor, and John Quereto. Executive directors of SAC are Tony Yapias and Peter Fatianow.

Administrative directors are Scott Green, Trey Dayes, Erik Schimmelbusch and SAC administrative director will be Joe Kerry.

Mike Pickard is the new associate vice president of resources, Steve Wilkinson is the new associate vice president of involvement, and Mike Thomas is the new associate vice president of leadership.

Associate vice president of advertising is Chris McChesney and Carol Yager is the associate vice president of public relations.

Directors of university relations are Britta Jafek as Student Council coordinator and John Day over the honor code and Ombudsman. Steve Moffat is the director of the Regional councils and Mike Sant is the director for the United Club Council. Beck Taylor is the administrative director for university relations.

Win the computer you need to succeed in the real world and a chance to use it there.

It's easy. Just try our Real World Demo on a Macintosh® computer to enter Apple's Real World Sweepstakes.

If you're one of 14 Grand Prize winners, you'll get to spend a week this summer at the organization of your choice listed below, where you'll see Macintosh computers hard at work. And when you get home, you can use your own new Macintosh SE/30 to write your resume and follow-up letters.

There will also be 20 First Prize winners who will receive Macintosh SE computers and 1,000

Second Prize winners who will get Apple® T-shirts.

You really can't lose if you come in and get your hands on a Macintosh today. Because once you do, you'll see how easy it is to use and how much one could do for you now.

You'll appreciate the value of a Macintosh computer after you leave campus and head out into the real world, too.

But don't take our word for it. Come in and try a Macintosh and see for yourself. And if you win the Grand Prize, you'll be seeing the real world sooner than you think.

Enter Apple's Real World Sweepstakes and you could win a week at one of these leading organizations and a Macintosh computer.

Enter April 9th - April 28th at the BYU Bookstore

See your Campus Computer Reseller for Sweepstakes Rules and Regulations.
